GENERAL ELECTRIC Large Screen TV Projectors

The General Electric Large Screen Video Projectors incorporate advances in simplicity, reliability and performance in large screen television projection.

This solid-state, high-brightness television projector is engineered for remote control operation; with improved circuit design for enhanced picture quality, power efficiency, and increased ease of operation, maintenance and service.

It utilizes the exclusive GE light valve—single gun, single optical path system which requires no convergence adjustments to faithfully reproduce monochrome and natural color TV pictures of high resolution and contrast.

Built-in remote control capability allows set-up adjustment and operating control at the projector, or from 200 feet away, with the addition of an accessory cable.

APPLICATIONS

In addition to projecting information from all standard video sources such as off-air TV tuner, video tape, video cassette, live camera, closed-circuit data network, video film chain, etc., the versatile system can be coupled to computer facilities through suitable interface equipment. It can project alpha-numeric data, graphic displays and computer generated images in real time.

GE large screen TV projectors are now in use in Business, Industry, Education, Medicine, Military, Government, Entertainment and the Arts.

Business—Instant review and analysis of computer data bank information, stockholders meetings, conferences, presentation of advertising and sales promotional campaigns, sales meetings.

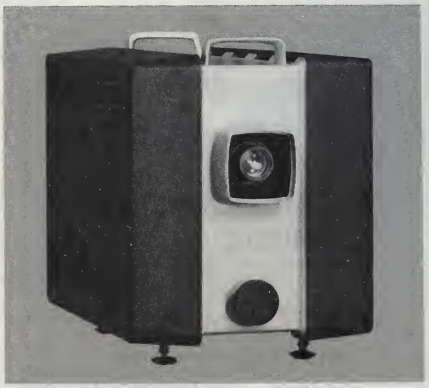
Industry—Safety and Industrial training programs.

Military—Command and control displays, computer readout, dynamic visual simulators, tactical and operational situation displays.

Medicine—Teaching surgical techniques, medical procedures, nursing, training and consultation conference information displays.

Entertainment—Sports, CCTV, standard TV, concerts, box office extensions.

Education—Off-campus programs and seminars, demonstration of the arts, teaching sciences,lecture demonstrations.



"Thousand" Series Projectors. (PJ500 and PJ700 not shown.)

PERFORMANCE FEATURES

- High efficiency power circuits permit operation at low line voltages without affecting picture quality.
- Low input power . . . 1,200 watts compared to 1,700 watts or more for other professional television projectors.
- Operates from standard 120v/20 amp appliance outlets.
- No radiation hazard. Highest voltage used is 7,200 v.
- LED circuit monitors and beam current meter included.
- Sweep reversal switches allow easy projected image changeover for front or rear screen applications.
- Variable picture size from 2 to 20 feet in width.
- Versatile projector mounting includes table top, gimbal, or on its matching, accessory base.
- Accessory rolling base allows easy transportability.
- Afocal lenses available to vary projection distance from standard 3.0:1 (throw distance to screen width) by factors of 2 or ½.

The NAEB is the only national organization in the field of public and educational telecommunications which truly is the field. It is the only national organization which can justifiably speak for the individual professionals in the field, because it is the only one which encompasses their varied specialties: public radio and television broadcastings; cable, closed circuit, and satellite communications; ITFS; instructional telecommunication . . . .

It has no vested interest but that the individual professional does his or her job well—and that he or she is required, encouraged, and helped to do so. That is its goal.

About the NAEB

The National Association of Educational Broadcasters is the society of professionals in the field of public and educational telecommunications— an expansive field which includes noncommerical radio and television broadcasting, instructional communication, cable technology and related areas.

The membership of the NAEB is as diversified as the tasks it performs. The individual members are in colleges and universities, state and local school systems, community television and radio stations, and telecommunications authorities. They are involved with programming, management, design, development, engineering, research, classroom instruction, and many other professional specialities.

Through its Professional Councils, through its Educational Broadcasting Institute, through its annual Convention, through its various periodicals and publications, through its specialized Personnel Placement Service, and through numerous other special activities and projects . . . the NAEB serves the professional needs and interests of its members. Its mission is not only to provide tangible services, but also to function as a catalyst and means for member activities, and to articulate and advance the standards of professional performance.

In addition to fostering professional growth among its individual members, the NAEB connects with the industry in yet another way. Many of those institutions which provide the working environment for the individual professional support and benefit from the NAEB by affiliating with it through the Institutional Associate program.

The Organization:

Over the last half-century, the NAEB has evolved from an alliance of college radio stations, to a representative of station interests, to its present challenge as professional developer and representative voice for the thousands of individuals who work daily in the field of public and educational telecommunications. Its membership is served by a professional staff housed at 1346 Connecticut Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. Individual attention to professional specialties is carried out through the Professional Councils, led by field directors and steering committees. The operations of the professional staff and the general direction of the Association are governed by its Board of Directors.

The Services

The NAEB meets the professional needs and interests of its members in both general and specific ways. The goal of all of its services is to promote and maintain a high quality of professionalism and to foster new ideas by facilitating formal and informal professional communication.

The services of the NAEB are organized into four general areas: Professional Training and Development, Conferences and Conventions, Publications and Information, and Personnel Placement. Under each of these general topics is a series of permanent, on-going services designed to provide real assistance to those who are seeking to develop their skills and knowledge, deepen their involvement and widen their impact.

NAEB's Personnel and Employment Service offers to its members the only personnel placement service designed especially for educational telecommunications. The service is designed for both those individuals seeking employment, and those institutions seeking personnel. A newly-established clearinghouse for minorities and women is designed to aid institutions wishing to hire minority and women candidates.

The NAEB publications office produces a monthly general NAEB Letter, this annual national directory, numerous Professional Council letters, several special publications and monographs, and the Public Telecomunications Review, a widely acclaimed bi-monthly magazine. In addition to the professional staff, editorial guidance and advice for the PTR is provided by an editorjal board.

NAEB offers an extensive program of national and regional meetings that provide professionals the opportunity to meet and exchange ideas and information. Among those events included in this area of service are: the Conference on Instruction, the Graphics Design Workshop, a series of Educational Broadcasting Institute seminars and workshops, and the annual NAEB Convention, which is the largest and most comprehensive professional gathering in its field. The schedule for the next three years is as follows:

November 13-17, 1977	Washington, D.C.
October 28-31, 1978	Washington, D.C.

The Special Activities

In addition to its regular program of services, the NAEB realizes the importance of responding to special or immediate needs as they arise. This may mean moving to fill an information gap—as with the development of the Program Information Clearinghouse—or focusing attention on the professional opportunities for minorities and women by creating two standing committees on Women's Activities and Minority Activities.

The Association also realizes that outstanding achievements in the field deserves recognition and encourages improvement. This recognition is granted through the NAEB Distinguished Service Award, its Annual Book Award, and its various professional awards given by the Professional Councils.

By remaining alert to trends in the field, and flexible in staff capabilities, the NAEB is able to create and maintain a series of Special Activities.

Professional Councils

Now in the third year of existence, the Professional Council structure of the NAEB has become the basis for the successful and valuable involvement of the individual member in the operation of the Association. The Professional Councils allow for a direct and intense interaction between people with similar interests in public telecommunications.

Each member of the NAEB is eligible to participate in Professional Council activities. Council members elect a Steering Committee and are consulted on a variety of matters affecting NAEB services and policies in a particular professional area.

Council members are urged to participate in the planning of the NAEB Annual Convention as well as the development of the Educational Broadcasting Institute (EBI) topics and seminars. Council members also are asked to serve as advisors on special projects and to develop procedures to provide recognition and awards for achievement in areas pertinent to Council interests.

Where the Council are clearly related to professional positions, a primary and secondary affiliation can be moted so that it will be possible to distinguish those who are associated with the Council because of position from those who are simply interested in the topic and wish to be better informed.

The listings which follow, which include names and state of residency, report only what the members have indentified as their first choice of a Professional Council.

If you think free sponsored films are half-hour commercials, think again.

Free-loan, sponsored films are public interest films. Corporate, non-profit or government organizations sponsor their production and distribution to educate, inform, entertain. Think about films such as:

I OWE IT TO THE SONGS I SING—60 min. color. The United Negro College Fund, founded in 1944 gives deserving students an educational opportunity they might otherwise have missed. Through the fund-raising tours of the Fisk Jubilee Singers, Fisk University in Tennessee does its part as a member of the United Negro College Fund. Enjoy the music of this fine institution—from the melodious choir to the kettle drums and brass of the University Orchestra.
#31535 CARNATION COMPANY

DON'T CUT US OFF—16 min. color. This film is a documentary of the Community Energy Action Program which assists low income groups and older people in solving their energy problems. "Don't Cut Us Off" examines the way Trenton, Santa Fe, Seattle and Jacksonville are instituting "winterization" programs, experimental produce greenhouses to supplement low income food budgets, and other ideas that communities use to make life more comfortable for the elderly, poor and disadvantaged.
#31482 FEDERAL ENERGY ADMINISTRATION

THE WOMAN'S GAME—28 min. color. Filmed in locations spanning the U.S., this sensitive and topical film is of interest to men and women of all ages and all levels of education. A fourth-grade class and their teacher and five women talk about new educational opportunities for women. The discussion ranges from high school athletics to training for non-traditional occupations to non sex-biased teaching materials.
#31451 U.S. OFFICE OF EDUCATION

AMERICA—IT'S ALL THE DIFFERENCE—26 min. color. America has always been a refuge for the world's risk-takers. The adventurers. The people who were a little—or a lot—different. That difference is the subject of this film. Poles, Chinese, Italians, Indians; the film explores the wide range of backgrounds that have contributed to our key strength: the free exchange of ideas. The kind of ideas that make a country great. The kind of ideas that make America so different.
#31403 JCPENNEY

WOMEN IN BALLOONING—5 min. color. This film takes a magnificent look at one of the sport's most able practitioners, Nikki Caplan. Nikki, an analytical chemist, mother of three, and enthusiastic balloonist, discusses what it's like to be a woman in a high-thrill sport. And as she talks, viewers will be shown a panorama of lush landscapes that can be seen only from the vantage point of a balloon.
#31569 HANES HOSIERY, INC.

THE USE OF ELECTRICITY AROUND WATER—2½ min. color. This new short demonstrates how electricity and water can become dangerous...dangerous enough to injure or even kill a person. For the important thing is that the electrical energy never comes into contact with the water when the product is used in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions. The film gives excellent advice to viewers on what and what not to do in certain circumstances...advice that could save lives.
#31507 UNDERWRITERS' LABORATORIES, INC.

And over 500 more programs. Programs that can stand alone as free features. Or free ITV programs, free fillers.

Modern TV offers more titles, more selections and more free information than any other sponsored film distributor. We have the best sponsored films...films that tell a story, not plug a product. Films that will make your viewers think...and think again.

For more information, write or call the Modern TV office nearest you.

ANNOUNCING THE NEW 1977

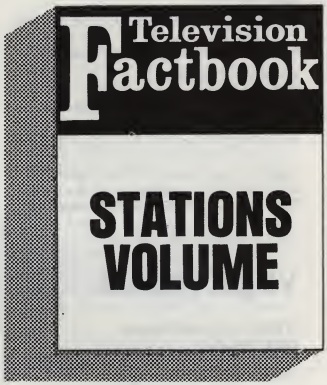
The single most authoritative, comprehensive reference source for the entire TV/CATV/Electronics industry.

Television Factbook

Over 2,000 pages in 2 big volumes.

An indispensable source for:

- Grade A&B contour maps for each commercial station in the U.S.
- Net weekly and average daily circulation for each TV station.
- Total homes and TV households for each station.
- TV households by states and counties for each station.
- Percentage of circulation by counties: 50 percent and over, 25-49 percent, 5-24 percent for each station.
- Selection of markets.
- Color capabilities (studio and mobile) for each station.
- Making TV circulation comparisons.
- Identifying key personnel.
- Mapping trading areas and test markets.
- Allocation of advertising funds.
- Building mailing lists.
- Canadian and International television.

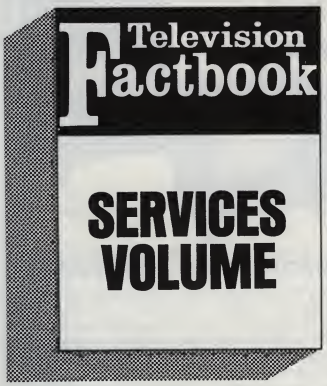


EXCLUSIVE IN TELEVISION FACTBOOK: Maps with Grade A&B contours for each commercial station in the United States.

1/3 actual size.

PLUS. . .

An expanded "See-All" map of television communication facilities in the United States—approximately 3 feet wide by 2 feet deep and printed on heavy stock for wall-mounting or framing—is included with the Factbook for the first time. In addition to locations of television stations and network routes, the new map shows locations of MDS Licensees and CPs, Domestic Satellite Earth Stations Licensees and CPs.



All-Year-Round Buyers & Sellers Guide:

- 110 Directories pinpoint products and services of TV/CATV equipment manufacturers, suppliers, programmers and allied businesses (networks, station reps, ad agencies, brokers, consultants).
- Nearly 500 pages devoted to CATV systems, listed alphabetically by states and cities. Ownership, address, phone, personnel, number of subscribers, population, starting date, channel capacity, stations carried, equipment, miles of plant, subscriber fee, current and planned originations given for each listing.
- Detailed statistics on economics and growth of television, radio, CATV.
- Financial performance of TV stations market-by-market, year-by-year; all station sales since 1949.

ONLY $74.50

$67.00 FOR 5 OR MORE FACTBOOKS ORDERED AT SAME TIME.

State Agencies, Networks, and Authorities

In most states, one institution more than any other, has principle responsibility for matters related to public broadcasting and educational communications. The responsibility and authority of these institutions varies widely. Some are sources of funds, some have administrative authority, some are licensees, and some are legislative or gubernatorial commissions established to study the possibilities of developing a role for the state to play.

This listing identifies the entity in each state which most clearly has the major responsibility for state activity in this field. Where more than one entity has an important role, additional entries have been included.

ITFS Listings

As compiled by the NAEB

ITFS Systems

What it is: Instructional Television-Fixed Service (ITFS), a special band of television channels reserved for the exclusive use of educational institutions, was first established by the Federal Communications Commission in 1963 to respond to the needs of instructional television for multi-channel transmission capability at costs considerably lower than conventional VHF or UHF television. ITFS operates at frequencies higher than those used by "standard" television. For this reason special antennas and converters must be installed on each building which is to receive ITFS. This equipment converts the transmission to signals which can be received by ordinary television receivers. When viewed in the classroom, ITFS looks like any other kind of television.

Advantages to the educator: ITFS offers an opportunity for low-cost multiple-channel television distribution. Each ITFS licensee may utilize up to four channels in the ITFS band, thus permitting the simultaneous transmission and reception of four different programs. Also available in the ITFS band is a special group of radio frequencies that may be utilized for audio or data response to the television program. This permits live interchange between teacher and student, and offers the possibility of computer-managed television instruction as well.

The cost of ITFS transmitters and transmitting antennas is considerably less than that of standard television broadcasting equipment. A one-channel ITFS transmitter-antenna package may currently be purchased and installed for $40,000 or less, depending upon local conditions. By contrast, cost for a one-channel VHF or UHF transmitter installation presently run between $750,000 and $1,000,000.

A third advantage is that ITFS is presently restricted to instructional uses. Thus, a school systems, college, or community educational association has a ready-made, reserved place in the telecommunications spectrum for its exclusive use.

Present utilization: In March, 1977, there were 376 ITFS channels reported in operation in the United States. These channels were operated by 89 different institutions holding a total of 186 ITFS licenses. At the same time, the FCC had granted construction permits for 13 additional ITFS systems, and was processing applications for eight more.

A survey conducted by the NAEB in the spring of 1975 compiled data from 68 of the 83 institutions holding licenses. They reported reaching an audience of 1,750,000 students during the 1974-75 scholl year, with each system averaging 4,360 hours of programming. Public and parochial elementary, junior high, and senior high school students comprised 92% of the viewing audience. Other significant groups using the service included medical professionals, business and industry executives, and engineers and scientists enrolled in continuing professional education courses. Over half of the systems reported that they transmitted their programming in color.

Recent developments: The FCC is currently considering three proposed rulemakings relating to ITFS:

1. RM 2603, if adopted, would permit ITFS systems to utilize non-broadcast technical standards in certain production and transmission equipment. This would have the effect of lowering still further the capital expenditures necessary to construct new ITFS facilities, or to re-equip existing ones.
2. RM 2609, if adopted, would permit CATV systems to receive and re-transmit ITFS signals on their cable. This would relieve cable-equipped schools and other reception points of the expense of acquiring and installing receiving antennas and convertors.
3. RM 2213, if adopted, would permit certain ITFS channels to be re-allocated to Multipoint Distribution Service, a common carrier regulated by the FCC. MDS is presently used to pay television programming to hotels and apartment buildings. Reallocating ITFS channels to MDS would have the effect of limiting the availability ot ITFS delivery systems to educational institutions in many major metropolitan areas.

Other news of interest to ITFS users comes from the U.S. Office of Education's Educational Broadcasting Facilities Program, which is now permitted to allocate some of its funding to non-broadcast services such as ITFS. Funding levels, however, are expected to be low.

ITFS and the NAEB: The NAEB closely monitors ITFS development both in the field and in Washington, and cooperates with other national agencies in legislative and regulatory efforts that will preserve and foster this important area of instructional technology.

Representatives from ITFS systems have formed an interest group within the NAEB, and hold special meetings at each NAEB convention. A six-person steering committee elected by the field coordinates ITFS activities and concerns with designated NAEB staff. Members of the ITFS Steering Committee are:

Looking for BIG SYSTEM capability in your tower supplier? Fort Worth Tower Company has it. For two decades we've been building high quality communications towers, large and small. Towers for public utilities, railroads, public safety agencies, microwave firms, and the many other communications industries where big system reliability is essential. Towers individually engineered to fit each system's unique requirements.

Fort Worth Tower Co. also offers a complete array of support equipment for your system including microwave reflectors, equipment lifts, and many other related items. You get top performance with a perfect match of equipment and accessories.

For maximum reliability, include a FORT WORTH MOBILT EQUIPMENT BUILDING in your specifications. Designed expressly to house communications electronic equipment, Fort Worth Mobilts withstand any climate or location problem. . .house electronic equipment according to the most rigid standards. Your building comes with supporting I-beams. Simply drop on your site, connect the service inlet, and you're in business. Mobilts save you time and money because complete wiring is installed at the factory. Many options are available in size, outside finish, wiring and ventilation. You'll find a Mobilt exactly suited to your needs.

We'd like to put our products and experience to work in your system. For full information and a precise quote on your project, please contact us. We'd like the opportunity to serve you.

Important Notice for Members

Before you even receive this year's NAEB Annual Directory of Public Telecommunications, next year's will be well underway. A new system of continuously updating this Directory has just been initiated to insure prompt, efficient, and accurate production of all future editions. But it can only be done with your assistance.

A solicitation will no longer be made for an updated professional address from year to year as we have done in the past. Instead, the burden of responsibility now rests with you. The professional address changes—those listed in the Directory—will be handled throughout the year as you report them to us along with mailing address changes.

Please note that we require two addresses from you: your mailing address which we will use to send all correspondence and publications to you, and a professional address and phone number, which will be printed in the Directory, where your fellow members may reach you during working hours.

The convenient address-change form printed here must be filled out completely as soon as you have a change or correction to report. If there are no changes, then we will simply reprint your present address next year . . . you won't receive a card from us asking for information.

Please make sure all changes are postmarked no later than December 1, 1977. Thank you.

DIRECTORY OF MEMBERS

October 1957

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDUCATIONAL BROADCASTERS

14 Gregory Hall, Urbana, Illinois

FOREWORD

This new directory has been prepared after a complete survey of the institutional membership of the NAEB in an effort to obtain accurate and up-to-date information. In a few cases station powers are not listed because the stations, in returning the questionnaire, listed ERP rather than rated transmitter power. When a second questionnaire failed to produce this information, it was omitted.

Although a new Directory will not be printed until summer, 1958, changes will be listed in the Newsletter each month for your information so that you may keep your copy up to date. Space has been left at the end of the each state section for the addition of the new members. YOUR COOPERATION IN HELPING US KEEP THE DIRECTORY UP TO DATE WILL BE APPRECIATED. PLEASE SEND IN ANY CHANGES AS SOON AS THEY OCCUR.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION of EDUCATIONAL BROADCASTERS

DIRECTORY OF MEMBERS

JULY 1, 1956

NAEB HDQ, 14 GREGORY HALL, URBANA, ILLINOIS

FOREWORD

This new NAEB Directory has been designed to make it easier for you to keep it up to date. You will notice that it is punched for a loose-leaf binder and that there is extra space left on each sheet. Each month, in the Newsletter, we will publish any changes in membership (or in addresses, phone numbers, personnel, etc.) that have occurred during the preceding month. This will permit you to make the necessary changes in your copy of the Directory. Periodically new sheets will be issued, incorporating the changes published in the Newsletter, and these can be readily substituted for the out-dated sheet in your loose-leaf Directory. We believe this new system will allow you to keep your Directory current and will alleviate the necessity of printing complete new Directories as often as has been done in the past. YOUR COOPERATION IN HELPING US KEEP THE DIRECTORY UP TO DATE WILL BE APPRECIATED -- PLEASE SEND IN ANY CHANGES AS SOON AS THEY OCCUR.

This new Directory has been devised to give you more information about the NAEB membership, and, by referring to the Index below, you should be able to use it more efficiently than in the past.

Analysis of Facilities Operated by NAEB Members
(Includes CP's for those not yet in operation):

Radio - AM Only	12
Radio - FM Only	80
Radio - AM & FM	6
TV Only	12
TV, AM & FM	4
TV & FM	6
Total Active Membership	120 (1)

(1) Due to operation of more than one station (radio and/or television) these 120 members operate, or have construction permits for, 158 stations.

(2) NOTE: In October all AERT members in good standing became individual members of the NAEB. At the same time all individuals who held affiliate memberships were changed to individual members, the affiliate category now including only organizations

Since this directory went to press too early to include all these changes, it is issued on the bassis of pre AERT-NAEB merger records, and does not include reclassifications which are in progress.
